ABSTRACT

[0033]   A programmable processor is adapted to detect exception conditions associated with one or more instructions before the instructions are executed. The detected exception conditions may be stored with the one or more instructions in a prefetch unit. Then, the exception conditions may be issued in parallel with the issuance of the instructions.

60022077.doc